March Second Teams Up with Elana Anderson, former Forrester Research Director

Friday, November 9, 2007 - Marblehead, Massachusetts

March Second, Inc., a marketing technology and consulting company, announced today that it has formed a strategic alliance with NxtERA Marketing. NxtERA was founded by Elana Anderson, a former Vice President at Forrester Research and a recognized expert on marketing technology solutions and best practices. The alliance will help both companies better serve customers who need support in selecting, implementing and maximizing the value of marketing automation solutions.

Elana will work with March Second clients to help them develop relationship marketing strategies and capabilities, leverage customer analytics, and select marketing technologies that enable data-driven customer-centric marketing. The NxtERA team will also work closely with March Second consultants to develop new technology-based solutions designed to help companies optimize the value of their marketing investments across all media and sales channels.

Prior to founding NxtERA, Elana was Vice President and Research Director at Forrester Research where she led the company's marketing practice. Elana was also VP of Customer Operations at Web Dialogs and spend many years in the consulting business, first with Andersen Consulting (now Accenture) and then with Tessera.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to team up with March Second and help them support their clients with technology solutions and customer-centric marketing best practices. We share the same passion for data-driven marketing and technology that can help companies better serve their customers and advance the value of their marketing investments. We have complementary skills and experience and working together just makes a lot of sense."

"When David and I heard that Elana had left Forrester to start NxtERA we immediately contacted her about teaming up with us to benefit our mutual clients. She's a friend we respect and admire not only for what she accomplished in growing the marketing practice at Forrester but also for her creative passion and commitment to excellence. We're confident that working together we can help clients make more informed decisions about their technology investments and continuously improve the value of their marketing efforts"
